

ABSTRACT

A method and apparatus are provided for managing cryptographic keys and performing cryptographic services within server or other computing environments. An appliance functions as a cryptographic key server to secure cryptographic keys and provide cryptographic operations as a network service.